

The Agatha Christie Hour, Set 2. Five mysteries broadcast on PBS's "Mystery!" in the early 1980s, with such stars as Rupert Everett, Amanda Redman, Ralph Bates, Stephanie Cole, Cherie Lunghi and Christopher Cazenove. "Magnolia Blossom": An unhappy wife tries to escape her marriage; "The Mystery of the Blue Jar": A young man consults an expert on the paranormal; "The Red Signal": A seance foretells of sudden death and danger; "Jane in Search of a Job": An Englishwoman takes on a dangerous assignment; "The Manhood of Edward Robinson": A henpecked fiance sets off on the drive of his life. Two-disc set, $39.99. (Acorn Media).

The Bird Can't Fly (2007 -- South Africa, U.K.) Barbara Hershey, Yusuf Davids, Tony Kgoroge, John Kani. Melody (Hershey) returns home to Fairlands for the funeral of her estranged daughter, meeting for the first time her 10 year-old grandson, River, whose existence she knew nothing about. Though she wants to take him away with her, he's resistant, preferring to stay with his father, an idle musician and the town's postman ... until a desert dust storm changes everything and reveals deep, dark secrets. (Vanguard Cinema).

Bread Crumbs (2009) Amy Crowdis, Marianne Hagan, Dan Shaked, Steve Carey. Bizarre take on "Hansel & Gretel": A group of porn filmmakers are systematically attacked by two children on the set of a remote shoot. (Green Apple Entertainment).

Broadcast News (1987) In the 1970s, the name James L. Brooks ("The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Taxi," "Terms of Endearment," "The Simpsons") was synonymous with intelligent television comedy -- his shows were insightful about work and love and always tapped into the zeitgeist. With his transition to film in the 1980s, he became a master Hollywood storyteller, and none of his films was more quintessentially Brooks than "Broadcast News." This caustic inside look at the Washington news media stars Holly Hunter, in her breakout role, as a feisty television producer torn between an ambitious yet dim anchorman (William Hurt) and her closest confidant, a cynical veteran reporter (Albert Brooks). Brooks's witty, gently prophetic entertainment is a captivating transmission from an era in which ideas on love and media were rapidly changing. Two-disc special edition with a new, restored high-definition digital transfer, supervised by director James L. Brooks and editor Richard Marks. Extras: Commentary featuring Brooks and Marks; documentary on Brooks's career in television and Eclipse Series 25: Basil Dearden's London Underground. After mastering the mix of comedy, suspense, and horror that helped define the golden age of British cinema, Basil Dearden (along with his producing partner Michael Relph) left the legendary Ealing Studios and, in the late 50s and early 60s, created a series of gripping, groundbreaking, even controversial films. In dealing with racism, homophobia and the lingering effects of World War II, these noir-tinged dramas burrowed into corners of London rarely seen on-screen. This set of elegantly crafted films -- "Sapphire" (1959), a dissection of a hate crime; "The League of Gentlemen" (1960), a deft heist adventure suffused with postwar melancholy; "Victim" (1961), a landmark gay character study, starring Dirk Bogarde; and "All Night Long" (1962), a provocative transposition of Othello to the swinging London jazz scene -- brings this quintessential figure of British cinema out of the shadows. Four-disc set, $59.95. (The Criterion Collection).

Enter the Void (2010) Nathaniel Brown, Paz de la Huerta. Director Gaspar Noe's ("Irreversible") latest exercise in cinematic envelope-pushing. A brother and sister are trapped in the hellish night time world of Tokyo, where he deals drugs and she works as a stripper. A crime gone bad leads to shocking violence and then moments of transcendence in which the movie plunges viewers into death and rebirth.

(Fox).

Inhale (2010) Dermot Mulroney, Mia Stallard, Diane Kruger, Rosanna Arquette, Sam Shepard. A New Mexico district attorney desperate to save the life of his daughter -- who needs a double lung transplant -- heads to Juarez, Mexico, where he hopes to meet with a doctor who he has heard performs transplants. But what he discovers -- an illegal organ-trafficking ring -- forces him to decide between reporting the vast and horrible crime to authorities or saving his daughter. (IFC Films).

Inspector Bellamy (2010 -- France) Dir.: Claude Chabrol; Gerard Depardieu, Marie Bunel, Jacques Gamblin, Clovis Cornillac. The great director's last film. Gerard Depardieu stars as legendary crime solver Inspector Bellamy. Bellamy is trying to enjoy a peaceful vacation with his bored wife (Marie Bunel), but murder travels with him: a mysterious man shows up with a deadly tale for Bellamy. There's also the unwanted arrival of Bellamy's ne'er-do-well brother. Whether the appearance of these two men is linked, and whether they have any connection to a local murder, are puzzles the hardened Inspector Bellamy will have to solve. (IFC Films).

Road Reps (2009) Romantic comedy about a pharmaceutical sales rep who has to travel to Northern California to win over a reluctant client, only to find out that his competition is his estranged wife. (Vanguard Cinema).

Ronald Reagan Centennial Collection. Eight-film set: "Dark Victory," starring Bette Davis; "Knut Rockne All-American," the actor's best remembered role ("win one for the Gipper!"); "Kings Row," an Academy Award nominee for Best Picture and arguably one of Reagan's best performances; "Desperate Journey" starring Errol Flynn; the Technicolor musical spectacular "Irving Berlin's This is the Army"; the wartime drama "The Hasty Heart;" the topical "Storm Warning" and "The Winning Team," with Reagan playing Hall-of-Fame baseball pitcher Grover Cleveland Alexander. $59.92. (Warner).

Santa Sangre (1989) The term "cult director" applies to no one more than Chilean-born filmmaker and visionary shaman Alejandro Jodorowsky. Jodorowsky exploded onto the international scene with his notorious 1970s sensations "El Topo" and "Holy Mountain," films that redefined movies as both art and entertainment while single-handedly creating the midnight movie genre. Now Jodorowsky's long-unseen "Santa Sangre" will make its eagerly anticipated American Blu-ray and DVD debut. Legal frustrations with the films' owner (and Beatles manager) Allen Klein, as well as a failed attempt to direct a 14-hour movie adaptation of "Dune" starring Orson Welles and Salvador Dali, kept Jodorowsky from making movies for 16 years until his triumphant return with "Santa Sangre." Blanca Guerra, Guy Stockwell and the filmmaker's sons Axel and Adan Jodorowsky star in this surreal epic about a young circus performer, the crime of passion that shatters his soul and the macabre journey back to the world of his armless mother and deaf-mute lover. The internationally acclaimed tale of madness, passion and redemption will be fully restored and accompanied by a wealth of extras; $29.98 on DVD and $34.98 on Blu-Ray.

Extras: Commentary by Jodorowsky and journalist Alan Jones; deleted scenes; theatrical trailer; Japanese trailer; "Forget Everything You Have Ever Seen: The World of Santa Sangre" feature length making-of documentary featuring all-new interviews with cast and crew; "For One Night Only: Alejandro Jodorowsky" Channel X U.K. 1990 documentary featuring interviews with Jodorowsky, Dennis Hopper, Marcel Marceau, Omar Sharif and others; "Goyo Cardenas Spree Killer": Documentary on the real life inspiration for "Santa Sangre"; on stage Q&A with Jodorowsky; Jodorowsky 2003 interview; composer Simon Boswell interviews Jodorowsky; "Blink Jodorowsky" short by Simon Boswell; "Close Your Eyes" music video by Simon Boswell; Adan Jodorowsky short film "Echeck."

What's the Matter With Kansas? (2009) Before the Tea Party movement had a name, author Thomas Frank's controversial New York Times bestselling book "What's the Matter with Kansas? How Conservatives Won the Heart of America" explored the rise of conservatism in his home state of Kansas and exposed the contradictions of the movement. Based on Frank's book, director Joe Winston's critically acclaimed feature-length documentary similarly deals with the ascendancy of conservatism and how conservative political strategists won the hearts and minds of Americans, a movement now more visible and very much in effect all across America today.

Extras: Extended and deleted scenes, commentary with the filmmakers, more. (Passion River Films).

Which Way Home (2009) Traversing more than 1,450 miles upcountry, Mexican freight trains routinely are boarded by migrants hoping to reach America. Among the thousands who ride the trains, many are children traveling alone. They come from all over Mexico and Central America, risking everything for the chance of a better life. This documentary follows some of these unaccompanied children as they make the long and treacherous voyage to the U.S. border.

Extras:

Deleted scenes; additional information on the National Center for Refugee and Immigrant Children. (Docurama).

White Wedding (2010) Zandie Msutwanta, Kenneth Nikosi, Rapulana Seiphemo, Jodie Whittaker, Sylvia Mngxekeza, Mbulelo Grootboom. Critically-acclaimed exuberant road comedy about love and loyalty, commitment and companionship set against South Africa's breathtaking landscapes. Ayanda is only days away from her "white wedding" with dress, bridesmaids, wedding planner, a lush reception all in readiness. Only one thing is missing: Elvis, the groom, who has gone to pick up his childhood friend and best man Tumi and is hundreds of miles away. Elvis and Tumi get derailed more than once on their comic, misguided journey: They come across every kind of obstacle, as they meet Rose, a free-spirited English doctor, run up against goats, redneck Afrikaners, lose direction and even get into an accident or two. A bright, feel-good movie about the voyage friends and lovers are willing to undertake to achieve their heart's desire.
